

Kanteena

The “Kanteena” range of seating is a development from the internal structure of the “Workspace” chair.

The design cue emulates ,not from a particular building, but from the atmosphere created by the ranks of anonymous steel sheds found within a typical industrial estate .

Surfaces reflect the planes of roofing and cladding of industrial units. Detail is provided by the inset panels within the extrusion and their potential for the addition of even more architecturally based detail.

Colour is used to create the mood and the design lends itself for the production of multiple units.
